Dean Bruning Retires From College Of Continuing Studies

"The least I can do for someone is help them maintain their self-esteem, and the most I can do is help them enhance it."

All things must come to an end. Even at the College of Continuing Studies.

Mary Bruning Ph.D., dean of the college of continuing studies, will retire effective Dec. 31.

Bruning has been dean of the college since 1994.

Bruning first came into close contact with UNO when she was still a student at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln. She did two internships, first with former UNO Chancellor Del Weber and with former University of Nebraska President Ron Roskins.

She began working at UNO in 1987 as director of the Peter Kiewit Conference Center and director of non-credit community program in the College of Continuing Studies. In May 1994 she was named dean of the college and dedicated herself fully to her work as well as other UNO outreach activities.

Notable is the ABC breakfast series, a series of speakers who speak about modern issues, over breakfast. The programs attendance has doubled since Bruning's arrival and will continue to be associated with her. The ABC breakfast series is also one of the highlights of Bruning's job along with other outreach programs.

"I really love the variety of activities and people's involvement," Bruning said. "It's exciting knowing there will be something new every day."

Bruning's dedication to her job is such that for the past eleven years she has commuted between Omaha and Lincoln.

She said she is looking forward to retirement, thinking of it not as just an ending but a change and a new beginning. She said she hopes to continue "growing and building, but not referring to plants and buildings."

The College of Continuing Studies is oriented around adult-students who want to learn a new skill or gain

UNO Under Construction: A Walk Through The New IS&T

by Ryan Gillen
Staff Writer

University officials and builders of the Peter Kiewit Institute of Information Science, Technology and Engineering said the building's unique features will make it a one of a kind attraction.

"We're doing things that other people have only talked about or done on a limited basis," University Architect Dave Irvin said.

When classes begin in fall 1999, about 40 percent of the building space at the former Aksarben property will be allocated for instructional laboratories, Project Manager Cal Logan said.

"The whole building is a lab," he said.

Builders said they will complete the $37.5 million project by April 1999. Since construction began in July 1997, they installed 53 miles of electrical conduit, which, laid end to end, would connect Omaha and Lincoln.

Much of the conduit (casing for electrical wires), along with air ducts, and some of the 11 miles of copper plumbing will not hide above ceiling tile. Left exposed students can learn how and why buildings work.

"Even the equipment rooms have windows," Logan said. "Normally, you never see that stuff. The way this building is set up, is inviting students to ask questions."

A computer lab will be on the main level of the College of IS&T. A wall of glass will keep noise from the hallway, but the glass will allow sunlight to help light the building.

$141k Tree Tab

by Jason Kieper
Staff Writer

Oct. 26 marked the one year anniversary that old man winter paid Omaha an early visit and wreaked havoc. UNO was no exception as 83 trees succumbed to the winter storm.

All of those trees will soon be replaced thanks to "an unusual coverage policy, one you don't normally see at universities," Gordon Jensen, purchasing and risk manager at UNO, said.

The $141,950 bill to replace the trees will be picked up by UNO's insurance company under the Midwest Higher Education Association to which the University of Nebraska school system belongs.

The storm's damage was expensive due to the warm weather last year. Most of the trees had not shed their leaves, the added weight from the snow and ice caused the limbs to break.

Most of the trees will be the same as those lost to the storm with the exception of the bradford pears.

"Bradford pears have a thick leaf growth and at that time of year the weight of the snow and ice caused them to break significantly. So we are putting service berries, a lighter leaf-producing tree in their place," Jim Veiga, manager of environmental services for UNO, said. Nearly all of UNO's more than 1,000 trees were harmed in some manner and had to be pruned. Some of the other replacement trees will be blue spruce, different varieties of crab apple, golden

In the building systems lab, students will gain experience working with the mechanical systems which control the indoor weather conditions.

"Because it will be self-contained, (students) will be able to fiddle with the mechanical equipment without affecting the whole building," Logan said.

In the lab, students will monitor sensors in air ducts, on windows, in the ceilings, and in walls, to simulate temporary weather adjustments.

The unique features highlighting the building required extra planning.

Logan said designers and contractors spent four to five months coordinating when different tasks would begin and end.

"Normally, the first person in wins, so everyone else has to work around their work," he said. "That was clearly not going to work on this job."

Don Gibbons, a finishing carpenter for Olympic Wall Systems said he has worked on larger jobs such as Embassy Suites hotel in downtown Omaha.

"This is one of the harder jobs we've done because the walls have to be finished all the way up to the deck," he said.

"It's a real experience," carpenter John McNeil said. "There are so many different roofs and wall systems so a lot of different building materials are being used."

a certificate without having to go through all the requirement classes. With her students-first attitude Bruning says they (at CCS) try to give the students "the tools and confidence to be life-long learners" and they take one student at a time and work with them to discover their individual goals.

Bruning's personal goals for the college can only be achieved by always being worked for - partnership and interaction with the entire community. Bruning works with change rather than against it and believes every experience is a different method of learning.

"It's a time of change," Bruning said, in reference to today's society, "and the deliverance of education is going to change in ways that have never even been thought of."

"Where would we all be," she said, "if it weren't for the student?"

Keeping her job isn't Bruning's only reason for stressing the student. "The least I can do for someone is help them maintain their self-esteem," she said, "and the most I can do is help

Gateway Opinion

CatTales

Love: It's A Dirty Business

Love. It's a splendid thing. Like everything else in this chaotic world, however, there is a time and place for it, and the office isn't one of them.

Is there anything more grotesque than listening to a co-worker profess his/her undying love for the screwball two cubicles away? I think not. Is it ethical for an employer to be infatuated with an employee? Sure it is, we cannot always control who we are attracted to, but is it ethical or even professional to act out on that infatuation? Nope.

We are all humans. We are not always able to separate our emotions from our jobs. In many cases that is a good thing, and it can even makes us more passionate about our work. It's a good thing as long as we do not turn our object of affection into our work.

Employer/employee romances are the most devastating. The employer

(let's call her Chris) and the employee (Pat) work together on a daily basis. It is Chris's job to review Pat on a regular basis. Either Pat is doing a good job or he is not doing a good job. It is also Chris's job to hire and, if need be, fire Pat. Over the first five months of Pat's employment, he has not been doing a good job. Chris has commented to other co-workers that she knows Pat isn't doing well. Chris has also commented on how cute Pat is, and she enjoys spending time with Pat outside the office.

How does this affect other employees? The other people in the office hear about the out-of-office adventures of Chris and Pat. They also know Pat is not doing his job, and wonder why Chris hasn't fired him yet.

Romance distorts our own view of reality, and that is dangerous in business. If your co-workers question your ethics or professionalism, and you are involved in an office romance, remember your view of reality is most likely quite distorted. In fact it is the duty of every employee to question the ethical and professional behavior of co-workers. The performance, business reputation and unfortunately personal reputation of everyone in a business will reflect in the business. It is the duty of all employees to question the ethics and professionalism of co-workers.

If you are a boss, do not date your employees. It's like drinking and driving. Sure, the booze is great, and you even like the way it makes you feel, but then you get in the car. You know it's wrong, but you convince yourself that somehow it's alright. You feel you're driving fine, but your reaction time is much too slow. When worse comes to worse, you cause an accident.

Office romances really aren't worth all the hassle they cause. All those bosses dating, or dreaming about employees need to take a deeper look at their infatuations. Admit it - it is a big pain in the butt, and not only your butt, but all of your employees' butts too.

Love and crushes and puppies and all of that warm and fuzzy stuff is great, but leave it in the tulip-filled parks on a sunny Saturday afternoon, and leave it out of the office.

Kennedy Right Choice For Metro Board

As the campaigns of 1998 wind down, and the Republican party appears destined to a clean sweep of the major offices in the state of Nebraska, some smaller (but not less important) races are shaping up.

One race that may not seem relevant to us at UNO is that of the Metro Community College board. Mike Kennedy, a former UNO student, is running for the position. We as students might give Kennedy a hard look based on his endless work and eventual success in many of the renovations that have taken place on campus. Kennedy was integral in getting support for the new student center we have today. He helped to rally key university officials around the idea that a new student center was vital to the school and important to the student body. The result was the Milo Bail Student Center, which also houses the food court on campus.

Retention has always been a problem here at UNO. While working on student senate, Kennedy helped draft the first proposal for dormitories on campus, in an effort to help increase retention and to get students more involved in campus activities.

I'm ashamed to say it, but I've more than once glanced over my ballot at election time, seen those running for offices such as Metro College, and chuckled to myself. Never had the thought crossed my mind that such races were important, especially to me as a student. But with little or no campaign money to spend, most candidates are forced to do little more than spread the word by mouth. Taking this into consideration, I think we should be a little more educated on such races, and support those candidates who have helped shape our university into the fine institution it is today.

I got the opportunity to speak with Kennedy about his campaign, and I was impressed, to say the least. We spoke about the Metro school board and the opportunity it posed for an individual like himself. His voice sounded smooth and confident as he talked about the Metro district, making him sound like a seasoned veteran instead of a wet-behind-the-ears aspiring politician. We talked about UNO—how the dorms were coming along, how receptive Omaha was to the hockey team, etc. We spent a good hour or so talking about anything and everything.

The one thing I took away from Kennedy was his sincerity. There was no political rhetoric or babble, just straight talk between two people. That was refreshing to me in a number of ways. Being exposed to a few politicians in my days, I have seen too much talk and not enough action. He wiped away those notions in my mind and appeared excited to take on the task of becoming a Metro College board member.

This may sound like more than just an endorsement for Mike Kennedy, but rather it is an endorsement of his accomplishments. Experience is vital in such a position, and Kennedy appears to be more than qualified in that department. With all the ground he helped break while at UNO, I would appreciate to see such a well rounded alumnus put those same experiences into helping Metro Community College.

The most important thing we can do as students is to vote. Whether it is Republican, Democrat, or Republican (did I already say that?), we need to make sure our views are heard. We have an opportunity to select those individuals who will help shape our county, state, and even country on Nov. 3. Let's make a difference by voting.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Editor,

It is readily apparent that there is an extreme lack of involvement on the part of UNO students. The Gateway publication has manifested this truth over and over for the past couple of weeks. The underlying problem, however, is that there is no real benefit that the average student can associate with the promotion of several, very distant individuals (Student Government runners) for reasons they most likely feel are geared more toward the welfare of a resume than for that of their concerns.

If someone really wants me in the voting booth, I need to know that my important concerns are being represented and not those of a fraternity, sorority or other club that would much rather dedicate time to parking spaces to facilitate a more "righteous" tailgate party.

Yours,

Cecil Brasher
Engineering and Technology

Dear Editor,

A few comments on the Oct. 13 front page Gateway article entitled "Citizens Support Proposition 413."

I felt the article was flawed in a couple of ways. First, the headline. It implies there is broad citizen support for 413. That would probably be speculation and belongs on the opinion page. The word "citizens" should have been in quotation marks.

Second, the name of the organization for which Mr. Wolf works, Citizen's For Nebraska's Future, implies that it is a broad-based citizens group. It is anything but that! This organization was formed and Mr. Wolf was hired by the Business Leader's Summit, whose members are the major financial backers of 413.

Sincerely,

Scott Winkler

Weekly Horoscope

College Press Service

Aries (March 21-April 19).

Put in the extra effort to hold your temper on Monday. Although you're itching to tell the truth, you don't need to tell it in anger. That could do more harm than good. Something you do might not be taken into consideration. Let the dust clear before you figure out your next move. Decisions made on Tuesday and Wednesday could influence your pocketbook.

Taurus (April 20-May 20).

Panic on Monday may be caused by another person's impatience. Be calm, but firm, especially if your partner is advising you to wait. Don't let someone else's emergency cause a problem for you. Just the opposite would be more effective. You calm them down, and the emergency will solve itself. Be careful with the choices you make on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Gemini (May 21-June 21).

Don't let yourself get all stirred up over a work-related conflict on Monday. If you go ahead and let your partner know how you feel, that ought to be enough. Keep the others out of it for now, especially if you're angry. You may not have all the facts yet. Reach a compromise on Tuesday that supports your most cherished beliefs. Don't sacrifice one to gain another.

Cancer (June 22-July 22).

Anticipate agitation from higher up on Monday, and maybe even an outburst of bad temper. Keep your head down, especially if controversial subjects are being discussed. You already have your mind pretty well made up, but do listen to the facts. Make sure your friends are really headed in the direction you want to go before you say you'll go along for the ride. Make a practical decision on Tuesday, one you can live with, and prosper.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22).

Let a friend break through your crusty exterior on Monday and give you a little information. You wouldn't have thought of this ordinarily, because you had your mind made up. There's something you need to consider, however, that's a little confronting. Don't resist an angry tone of voice. Let the information penetrate your defenses.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22).

You're worried about money on Monday, but don't get into a panic. By putting a method you already know into effect, you'll be able to shut off a leak and protect your resources. A practical decision you make on Tuesday will bring rewards in the future, and on Wednesday, you can find a way to buy your loved one something special.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23).

A rather surprising confrontation on Monday could lead to a new friendship. A rule you don't want to obey could turn out to be good for you and help you achieve your lifelong ambitions. So, don't resist one who's trying to give you coaching, even if you don't like what you're hearing. Vote to protect your financial interests on Tuesday.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 21).

Put up with an irritating co-worker on Monday. He or she may have a couple of good points, so don't throw those out with generalizations. Just because this person is insensitive in some areas doesn't mean you should ignore his or her advice. The opposition is tough on Tuesday and Wednesday, but you can carry the day.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21).

You'd rather goof off than work on Monday, even more than usual. Follow through with old leads instead of making new contacts. Use your restlessness to push yourself to try something you've been thinking about. There's plenty of work on Tuesday and Wednesday, and some of it is kind of frustrating. It's going much more slowly than you'd hoped, and possibly veering in a direction you don't like.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19).

You're still cleaning up the mess from this weekend, but that's OK. Make some changes you've been thinking about while you're at it. Once things are disrupted thoroughly, as they seem to be, it's a good excuse to put them the way you wanted them in the first place. This is a good time for it, because structures you build on Tuesday and Wednesday should be quite solid.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18).

You're especially intelligent on Monday, and that's good. You'll need the extra brainpower and quick wit to outmaneuver a tough competitor. Get your two cents' worth in early, and you'll shift the way things are decided on Tuesday. If you don't speak up at all, you could lose an important benefit.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20).

Financial worries Monday spur you to study the issues. There's something you can do to improve your lot in life, but you won't get there by accident. This is going to take planning, and a decision on your part by Tuesday. You'll also need to make up your mind on Wednesday in another situation. You're using skills you've recently learned, and that's important.

Round 1

Psyching Yourself Up To Quit

by Colleen Sergeant
Medical Writer

This is Round 1 of the Gateway's "Fight the Urge" series. If you want to quit smoking but don't know how or can't get motivated, this series can help you win the battle.

There is more to quitting than beating the cravings.

"The psychological condition is much more difficult to deal with," Richard Stacy, UNO health education professor, said.

Can you predict when your toughest times would be if you quit smoking? Maybe it would be when you're with friends, at the bar, or in your car.

Stacy said if the addiction was only physical, a person would crave a cigarette on a schedule, like every 30 minutes, but that is usually not the case. People tend to smoke in certain situations or when they feel a certain way, which proves there is a psychological component.

You must be mentally prepared to deal with the psychological addiction, which takes the longest to get over. First, you must figure out your reasons for smoking. Then ask yourself the following two questions:

- Are my reasons for smoking worth harming my body?

- Are there other things I could do in the situation besides smoke?

Analyze your smoking patterns. The best way to do this is to keep a record. Write down when, where and with whom you smoke. Also take note of your emotions and how bad you really want a cigarette. You'll notice that certain situations or emotions trigger the urge to smoke.

This analysis will help you in Round 2: Preparing for the Big Match.

Next, identify your reasons to quit. What is important to you? The following are good reasons to knock out the habit:

- To live longer. Your body will begin to heal immediately after quitting and your risk for developing smoking-related diseases will decrease.
- Second hand smoke is dangerous to your family and friends.
- Your children will be less likely to suffer from respiratory problems and become smokers themselves.
- If you are pregnant, your baby is less likely to be born with underdeveloped lungs and suffer from low birth weight. Your risk of having a miscarriage and other complications during pregnancy will decrease.
- Your breath, skin, clothes and home will smell better.
- After you quit, you will have more energy and be sick less often.

- You will avoid a smoker's face. The medical community uses this term to describe a condition characterized by wrinkles, gaunt facial features, and dull, grayish skin with purplish and red blotches.

- You will save money. "People have to make the decision that being a non-smoker has some advantages to being a smoker," Stacy said. He said to make a list of advantages and disadvantages of being a smoker and a non-smoker.

"Most smokers say 'yes I would like to be a nonsmoker,' however, they are not so quick to commit themselves to the quitting process.

You have to want to quit. This is difficult for young people to do.

"The students out here haven't experienced the harmful effects, yet. So it's difficult to get people to think about twenty years down the road," Stacy said.

It often takes a trigger, such as a relative being diagnosed with lung cancer, for people to realize how dangerous smoking really is.

So how can you get motivated?

- Educate yourself. There is some pretty grim literature out there about the health effects of smoking that will scare you.

- Visualize yourself as a non-smoker.

- Set goals. Think about how proud you will be when you knock out nicotine.

- "Run a mile," Luca O'keefe, pre-med major, said.

- Bribe yourself. Maybe the money you'll save from quitting will fund a vacation over spring break.

- Change your attitude. Think positively.

"Yes, I am going to be nervous, anxious, and irritable, but it won't last forever."

"It won't be that bad; it's not going to kill me."

"I can kick butt."

"I want to take control of my life."

"I'll be happy once I'm done."

Your training for this week should include mental preparation. You have to want to kick butt.

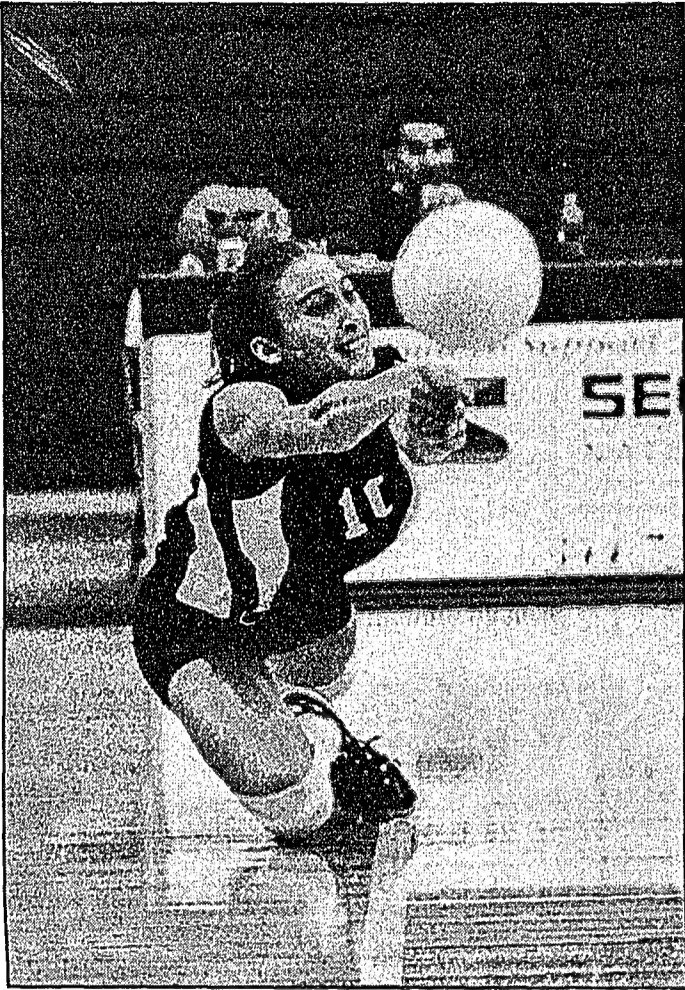

Knocking out nicotine is not easy, but it's not impossible. In fact, 46 million Americans have quit smoking. Challenge yourself to fight the urge and start Round 1 today.

If you have questions or would like to share a personal experience please call Colleen Sergeant at 554-2470 or drop by the Gateway. Check out the information about smoking in the Gateway office on the first floor of the Milo Bail Student Center.

Mavericks Still In Playoff Picture

by Joe Lindell
Staff Writer

Maverick defensive specialist Jamie Shafer stretches to dig the ball during last weekend's action against North Dakota.

After Friday's loss to nationally ranked North Dakota State, Coach Rose Shires' Maverick volleyball team needed a win to stay in contention for the NCAA playoffs. With only six matches left, there was no time to lose as Shires said her team needed to finish the last seven matches with a 6-1 mark.

The Fighting Sioux of North Dakota tried to stop the playoff-minded Mavs from getting a key win Saturday night at the Sapp Fieldhouse but the Mavs won in three games, 15-13, 15-11, 15-7.

The Sioux fought bravely but there was no stopping the power of Mav outside hitter Tracy Ankeny. The Mavs jumped out to the early lead but the Sioux came back to draw even and even took the lead. This seemed to bring the Mavs together and they rallied behind digs and quick sets of seniors Christy Fossum and Cheri Pribyl. After a long rally, Tracy Ankeny's rocket-like kill brought the Mavs to victory in the first game.

The Mavs again looked to senior leadership to win game two. Defensive specialist Jamie Shafer's digs and Pribyl's all-out hustle combined to inspire the Mavs while Krista Niezwaag and Nikki Mastny combined for important kills that ended game two.

The Mavs quickly finished the Sioux in game three. Ankeny's accuracy on kills seemed to be a reflection of the Maverick volleyball team's level of play as a whole.

After the match, the Mavs exuded an air of confidence but they know they have a lot of work to do to make the playoffs. When asked how she viewed the Mavs chances to sweep the remaining six games and make it to the playoffs, Ankeny said, "As long as we keep taking care of our side and minimizing our errors, we'll be right there on top and be ready to go to regionals."

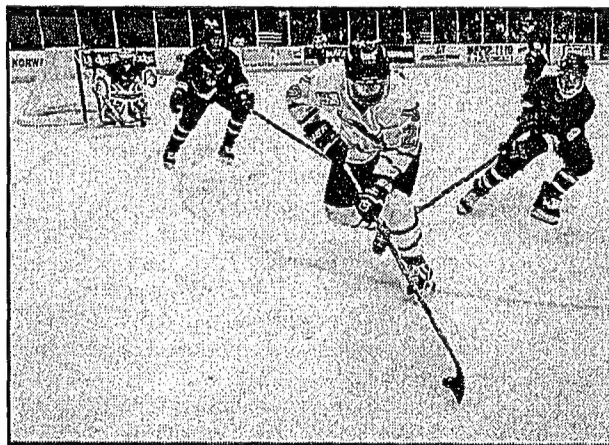

After a national championship and an elite eight berth, some may see this season's record as a disappointment, but Shires holds her team to a higher standard.

"We feel very confident that we can beat the remainder of our opponents. We've beaten them the first round," Shires said. "For us, our goals are to qualify for the NCAA playoffs and to have a 20-win season and I think that if we had anything less than that we would not consider our season successful."

To live up to Shires' standards, the Mavs will have to eliminate the errors that were their Achilles' heel against North Dakota State on Friday. The Mavs committed three times as many errors as North Dakota State did and lost the match in three games.

"We do know that we have to pick up some of our play in order to make a strong push at the end," Shires said. "We're working on eliminating our errors and creating errors for our opponents."

The UNO Maverick hockey team split a weekend series with the Minnesota State-Mankato Mavericks in the Civic Auditorium.

Minnesota State won 5-1 Friday night, but UNO posted a 6-5 win Saturday for their first win of the year.

Friday night, UNO goaltender Jason Mitchell was victimized by blown coverage in the UNO defensive zone that led to a pair of first-period goals for Minnesota State. They added two more in the second to push their lead to 4-0. The lead ballooned out to 5-0 when Minnesota State added a goal 2:24 into the third period.

UNO got one back when Jeff Hoggan scored at 4:21 of the third period. It would prove to be too little too late for UNO as the closest the team would get to scoring again was two shots that hit the post in the game.

Mitchell finished with 31 saves in the losing effort while Minnesota State's Todd Kelzenberg turned aside 22 of 23 UNO shots he saw.

"We got into a situation where a team came in and manhandled us," UNO Head Coach Mike Kemp said. "They beat us in every aspect of the game."

After the game, the players held a closed-door session in the locker room and made some positive changes.

Saturday night saw more offense and Kendall Sidoruk in the nets for UNO as they won 6-5 but not without a scare in the final three seconds.

Hoggan and Jason White each scored first-period goals for UNO, but the team was down at the end of the period after Minnesota State scored three times in the first 20 minutes.

Jason Cupp tied the game when he scored the only goal of the second period, a power play tally for UNO.

UNO scored the first three goals of the third period from Derek Reynolds, Tom Kowal and Hoggan tallied his second of the night to make it a 6-3 game.

Minnesota State scored twice in five minutes to cut the gap to 6-5 and nearly tied it but defenseman Todd George's shot sailed just over the crossbar as time expired.

Maverick Swimmers Take Win Over UNK

by Heather Price
Staff Writer

The Maverick swimming and diving team beat the University of Nebraska-Kearney Antelopes 180-119 Saturday afternoon in Kearney.

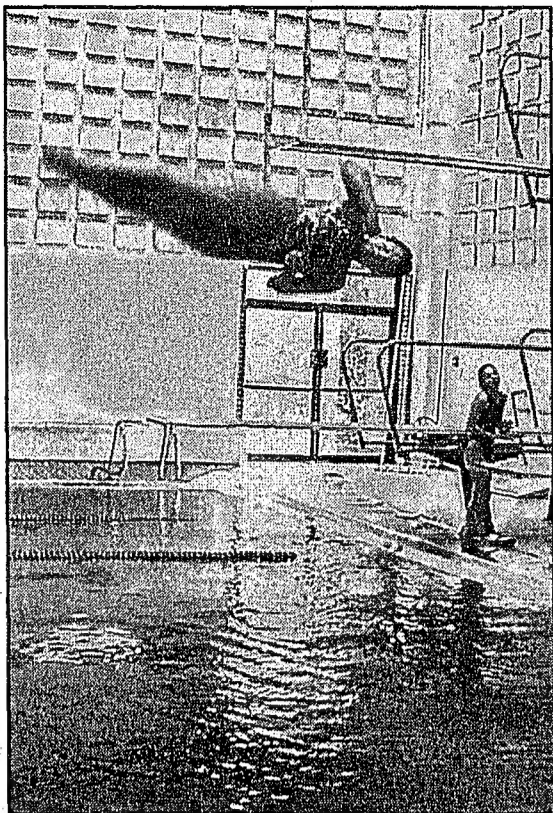

In the second meet (and win) of the season the Mavs won 13 out of 16 events, including the two relays, the 200-yard medley and the 400-yard freestyle. UNO freshmen accounted for nine of the 13 wins.

Mav diver Aja Wurth took first in both diving events beating out the Antelope's Dusty Walston by more than 27 points in the one meter dive. Fellow Mav freshman Tasha Soby won three swimming events, the 100-yard backstroke, 200-yard backstroke, and the 200-yard individual medley. For the second week Soby also set a Maverick record in the 100-yard backstroke with a time of 1:00.96, beating the latest record by more than two seconds and the previous record by more than seven seconds.

"I didn't know what to expect for the backstroke competition. Kearney's swim team has recruited big time, so the events were going to be close," Soby said. The closest competition was Antelope Amy Clement, who was 4.66 seconds behind.

Twin Mavericks Jodie and Jamie Haferbier helped contribute to the win by receiving 24 points in five events between them, including two first place wins by Jamie.

first in the 50-yard freestyle.

UNO sophomore Kristy Malone placed first, second and third in the 500-yard freestyle, 1000-yard freestyle and 50-yard freestyle respectively.

"At the beginning of the 1000 I slipped behind at about the 300 mark. I kept a constant pace the rest of the 1000 with the leader. Knowing this, I knew that if I didn't slip in my 500 I could come back strong," Malone said.

Other Mavericks contributing to the win included: Amber Ripa, Leah Schoville, Kim Ferris, Danielle Kaiser, Steph Patterson, Nicki Nabb and Karla Schrole.

This weekend the Mavs head to Colorado for back-to-back meets on Friday and Saturday against Colorado School of Mines and Northern Colorado.
